

THE ELIZABETH J. LATIMER LECTURE IN PALLIATIVE CARE

Palliative Care in Humanitarian Crises: From Then and There to Here and Now

OPEN LECTURE

ALL WELCOME

Keynote Speaker:

Dr. Anna Voeuk

MD, MPH, CCFP(PC), FCFP, DTM&H

Assistant Professor, QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Anna received her medical degree from the University of Calgary. She completed her residency in Rural Family Medicine, additional residency training in Palliative Medicine, and a Master of Public Health degree with a specialization in Global Health through the University of Alberta. She also has a Diploma in Tropical Medicine & Hygiene from The London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine. Anna practiced full scope rural family medicine before shifting her focus towards palliative care. Her interests include palliative care in the context of humanitarian crises as well as low-resource and underserved settings. She worked primarily as a palliative care physician with the Edmonton Zone Palliative Care Program in Edmonton, Alberta and has also participated in humanitarian responses to natural disasters, conflict, forced displacement, and disease outbreaks.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Recognize the role of palliative care in humanitarian crises
- Identify challenges of and opportunities for integrating palliative care in global emergency responses
- Discuss how this work is applicable to improving equitable access to palliative care in and from Canada
